A need to feed

Mission's needs up, donations down

By HELEN MANSFIELD

hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — The Reverend Scott Keenan has been making the rounds lately. He's been going before the members of the area Village Boards, with hat in hand, to talk about the plight of the Open Arms Mission. He made his case Nov. 12 before the Lindenhurst Village Board.

Simply put, Keenan said, more families are in need this year, and monetary donations to the mission are down. He said need has increased to more than 35 percent of what it was this time last year.

"It's been a unique year," Keenan said.

Open Arms Mission, based in Antioch, has been providing food for roughly 250 Antioch and Lake Villa Township families each week.

"A third of those people are children," he added. "The need is critical and is growing."

Keenan said the mission had to place its order for food boxes on Oct. 1 of this year, and had to put the money down up front. He said money has been "trickling in" to pay for the 450 food boxes, which is double what was bought last year.

"Last year we ran out of food and had to scramble to put together more boxes because the need was so much greater than we anticipated," said Keenan.

The Holiday Meal Box will provide enough food to feed a family of eight. A donation of $25 provides a traditional Thanksgiving dinner, including a 12- to 14-pound turkey, mashed potatoes, vegetables, gravy, cranberry sauce, stuffing, dessert and coffee.

Each box provides a total of 80 pounds of food, including fresh milk, salad, eggs and other nutritious items.

Along with the Holiday Meal Box, Open Arms Mission also has an Adopt-a-Family Program. Those in need within the community provide a "needs wish list," which includes items such as clothing, coats, gloves, hats, boots, a toy for children or a personal item for adults.

The program will include children, adults and senior citizen families. Families living in Antioch and Lake Villa Townships may register for the program in person at the mission, 1548 S. Main St., Antioch, between 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

"There is a great and growing need in the community, so we are asking our neighbors to help their neighbors and reach out to adopt a family in need this holiday season," Keenan said.

How to help

To make a donation to the Open Arms Mission, send a check to Open Arms Mission, PO Box 79, Antioch, IL 60002.

For more information, contact the food pantry at 847-395-0309. Food boxes will be distributed from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. Nov. 20 and 21 at the food pantry, 1548 South Main St., Antioch.

Seriously, it's time to get the smoke out

I started smoking cigarettes when I was just a kid.

I freely admit that I picked it up for stupid reasons – mainly to look cool and impress people who were my age.

By the time I was about 20, I realized just how pointless and ridiculous the habit really is.

But did I quit? No.

I took a small hiatus here and there, but then I was inevitably back to my pack a day. Once nicotine has its hooks in, it's hard to give it up.

But, finally, this past January, I decided to really quit. Simple as that.

I threw away my last pack and gave it up cold turkey. And it actually worked.

Matt Pera

I wouldn't recommend this method to everyone, and I'm sure the people who know best would tell you that I was less than pleasant to be around during the first month of my smokeless life.

But I had it in my head that I was going to stop, and I haven't had a cigarette in almost a year now, shattering my previous personal best.

What's really unfortunate is I'm not out of the woods yet. Probably never will be.

But if you are a smoker, odds are you've at least thought about quitting. You've probably lit that morning cigarette, let out a couple hacks, looked down at the culprit of the cough and thought, "What am I doing?"

If you do want to quit, now might be a good time.

The Great American Smokeout is Nov. 15 and the Lake County Health Department is offering tips to snuff the habit.

Among them are picking a day to quit and taking the time to prepare, and following the "four D's" when you get hit with a craving – drink water, delay, deep breathe and do something else.

All four of those activities are more worthwhile than smoking. But then, so is staring at a wall.

So that's my two cents.

I know I generally write more about the content of the Journals in this space, but just wanted to give a little encouragement to anyone who's trying to kick the habit.

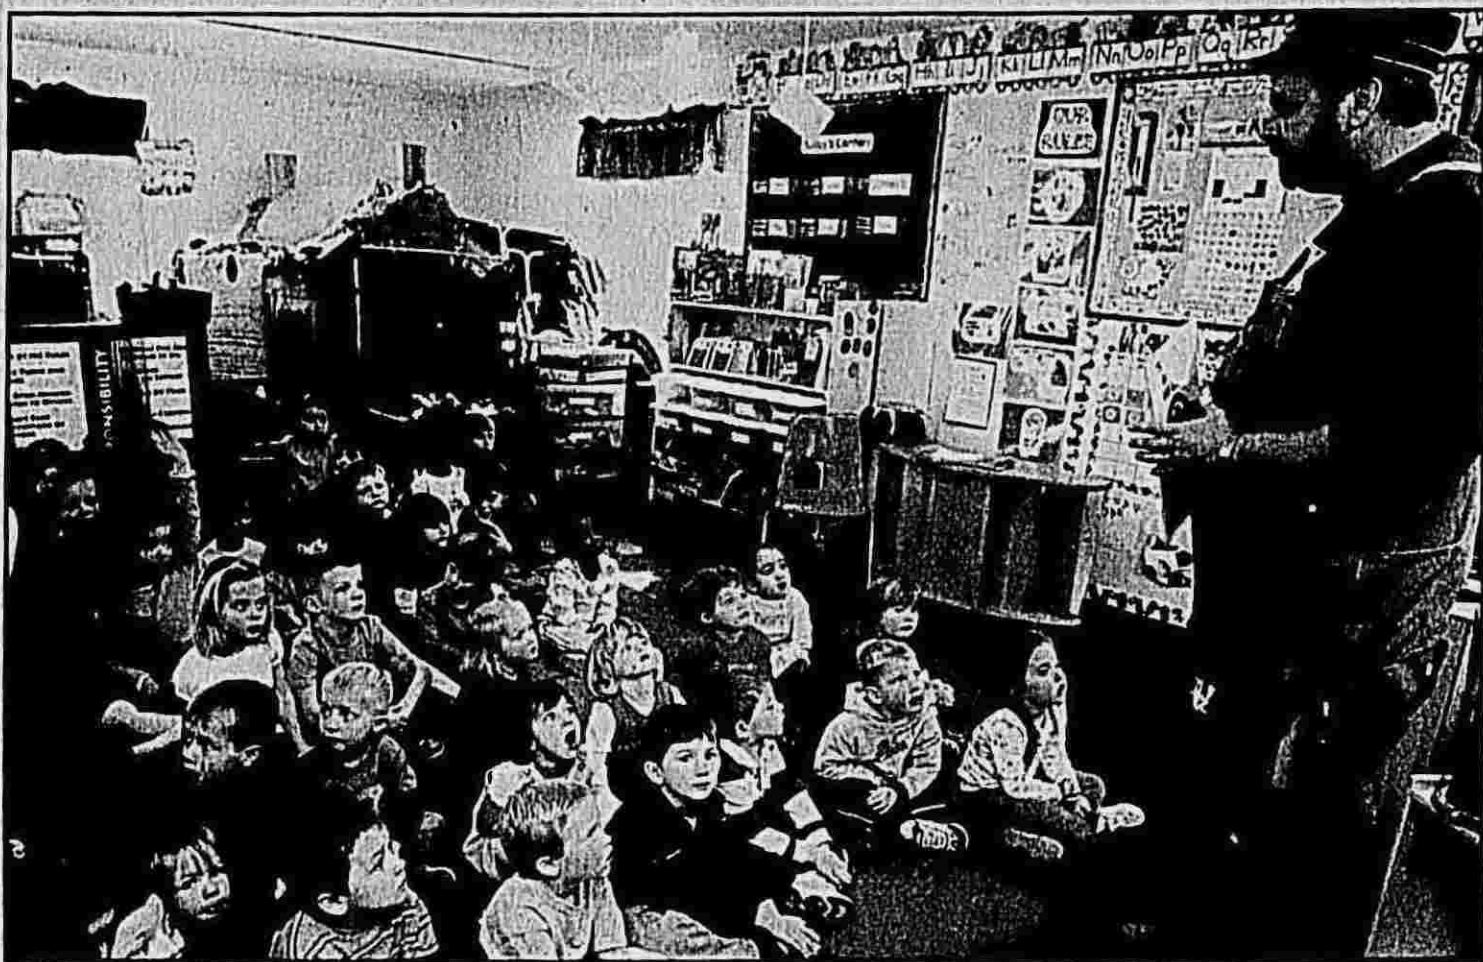

For information about quitting, you can call the Tobacco Free Lake County program at 847-377-8090 or visit www.co.lake.il.us/health/chs/tobaccofree.

Thanks for reading the Journals, in print and online.

Students honor veterans' sacrifices

LAKE VILLA — Well, if you ask me where I come from here's what I tell everyone I was born by God's dear grace In an extraordinary place Where the stars and stripes And the eagle fly

— From "Where The Stars and Stripes, and The Eagle Fly," by Aaron Tippin

Students at Lakes Community High School participated in a day-long celebration on Nov. 12, taking time to recognize the sacrifices made during the last 200 years by the men and women in each of the U.S. military branches.

Organized by Lakes social studies leader Rebecca Holst, about 50 veterans, from World War II to members the War on Terror, were treated to breakfast and a patriotic assembly.

Retired Air Force Col. Gerald Benson read from the poem "What Is A Veteran?" by Marine Corps chaplain, Father Denis Edward O'Brian.

"Some veterans bear visible signs of their service: a missing limb, a jagged scar, a certain look in the eye. Others may carry the evidence inside them, a pin holding a bone together, a piece of shrapnel in the leg — or perhaps another sort of inner steel: the soul's ally forged in the refinery of adversity," Benson read. "A vet is an ordinary and yet extraordinary human being, a person who offered some of his life's most vital years in the service of his country, and who sacrificed his ambitions so others would not have to sacrifice theirs."

When all was said and done, Benson said, that the two little words, "thank you" will mean more to most veterans than any medal they could receive.

"It is the veteran, not the reporter that ensures freedom of the press; it is the veteran, not the poet that provides freedom of speech; and it is the veteran, not the campus organizer that allows the freedom to demonstrate," he added.

Those attending the Nov. 12 assembly saw a PowerPoint presentation made by social studies teacher Matt Rife. The multimedia presentation consisted of old and new photographs, of men and women, who have served or are serving in the military. Each is a family member of a student or teacher, including Holst's own sister.

The pictures were accompanied by country singer Aaron Tippin's song "Where The Stars and Stripes, and The Eagle Fly," which students found fitting, because the eagle is Lakes' mascot.

Brigadier Gen. Ward Arnston, a resident of Antioch, spoke to the students on the history of Veterans Day and gave them a number of suggestions on how to support those who are supporting their country.

"But, you also have the freedom not to do anything," Arnston said.

Antioch Community High School proudly presents "The Curious Savage" by John Patrick, a sweet and funny play about a group of kooky people in a sanatorium.

Starring Nicole Hojnacki as "Ethel Savage" and Noelle Bruce as "Fairy May," the play will be performed at 7 p.m. on Nov. 15, 16, and 17 in the auditorium.

First produced in 1950, "The Curious Savage" illustrates the healing power of love and compassion, and the debilitating nature of greed.

To make the play more accessible, directors Lindsay Celaya and Mike Walsh have set the play in the 21st century and updated the language and historical references. Student director Taylor Coull also has helped organize the actors and design the set.

Tickets can be bought at the door for $3 for students and $5 for general admission. The directors and cast invite the entire community to attend.

Antioch seeks to resolve Neumann Homes issues

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — Attorneys representing villages, mortgage brokers, homeowners associations, and building contractors are lining up to see what funds they might be able to collect from Neumann Homes, after its filing for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Lawrence Moelmann, of the Hinshaw and Culbertson law firm, represented the village of Antioch Nov. 12, as representatives from Neumann Homes appeared in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Chicago.

Antioch has two Neumann developments, Clublands of Antioch and NeuHaven, which jointly consist of 1,400 homes. Roughly half of them have been completed.

Neumann Homes filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection Oct. 23, leaving the village and homeowners in limbo.

“The Village of Antioch is cooperating with the home owners association to address the situation created by Neumann's bankruptcy in order to resolve outstanding issues.”

Lawrence Moelmann
Lawyer representing Antioch

According to court papers, Neumann has 22 active development projects — 15 in Illinois. “The Village of Antioch is cooperating with the homeowners association to address the situation created by Neumann's bankruptcy in order to resolve outstanding issues,” Moelmann said.

Moelmann said one of the motions pertained to Cole Taylor Bank to assume financing for those partially-completed homes.

“The court indicated that motion would be granted,” he said.

Another motion recommended banks provide financing through Neumann Homes, so that some of the building operations could continue.

In the motion filed by Neumann Homes, the builder cites sharply dropping homes sales as part of its reason for filing for bankruptcy.

“Published reports indicate that, since September of 2006, total U.S. housing starts have declined 22.7 [percent], total U.S. existing home inventory has increased 21.15 [percent] and total U.S. new home sales have declined 13 [percent],” according to Neumann's motion.

Veterans ceremony draws a crowd

Memorial team wants speakers to focus on youth

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hnmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

LINDENHURST — Ever since the village formally dedicated the Lindenhurst Veterans Memorial on Nov. 11 of 2006, it has seen its share of veterans, political dignitaries and young people.

This Veterans Day was no exception.

Despite cloudy weather, about 350 people attended the Nov. 11 Veterans Day ceremony at the memorial, which is next to the Lindenhurst Village Hall at 2301 E. Sand Lake Road.

"When we had the dedication last year on Nov. 11, we had 1,100 to 1,500 turn out," said Paul Baumunk, chairman of the Lindenhurst Veterans Memorial Commission.

Baumunk, also former Village Board president for Lindenhurst, was drafted in 1968 and spent one tour in Vietnam in the Army's 9th Infantry Division.

He also was selected as the first commander for Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4894 back in the late '80s.

Baumunk, a former teacher, was appointed to the memorial commission by former village president Jim Betustak.

"As a group [the commission], we didn't know what we wanted, but we knew what we didn't want," Baumunk said.

The memorial was paid for with donations from individuals and civic organizations. But, the memorial commission didn't want the piece cluttered up with plaques commemorating the names of various donors.

"We wanted people to take home the feeling and emotion," he said.

Going forward, Baumunk and the rest of the commissioners have asked that each speaker at the memorial to focus their comments on the community's youth.

At the base of the multi-paneled memorial is a plaque with a quote by President Franklin Roosevelt.

It reads: "In the truest sense, freedom cannot be bestowed; it must be achieved."

"That says everything," Baumunk said.

Agencies farm recent purchase connects trails

By STEVE PETERSON
speterson@nwnewsgroup.com

LIBERTYVILLE TOWNSHIP - Liberty Prairie Conservancy, along with Lake County Forest Preserves and Libertyville Township, has bought the 142-year-old Casey farm in Libertyville.

The site is one of Lake County's few remaining centennial farms.

The purchase included 34 acres of total land to the Conservancy, with 15 acres of that adjoining land going to the forest preserve and five acres going to the Libertyville Township Open Space District.

"This is the first time that we have coordinated with the township and forest preserve on a purchase," Liberty Prairie Conservancy Executive Director Steve Barg said. "We had some really strong interest from private donors."

This allows for important trail connection. In the future, we can connect a trail when Route 21 is widened."

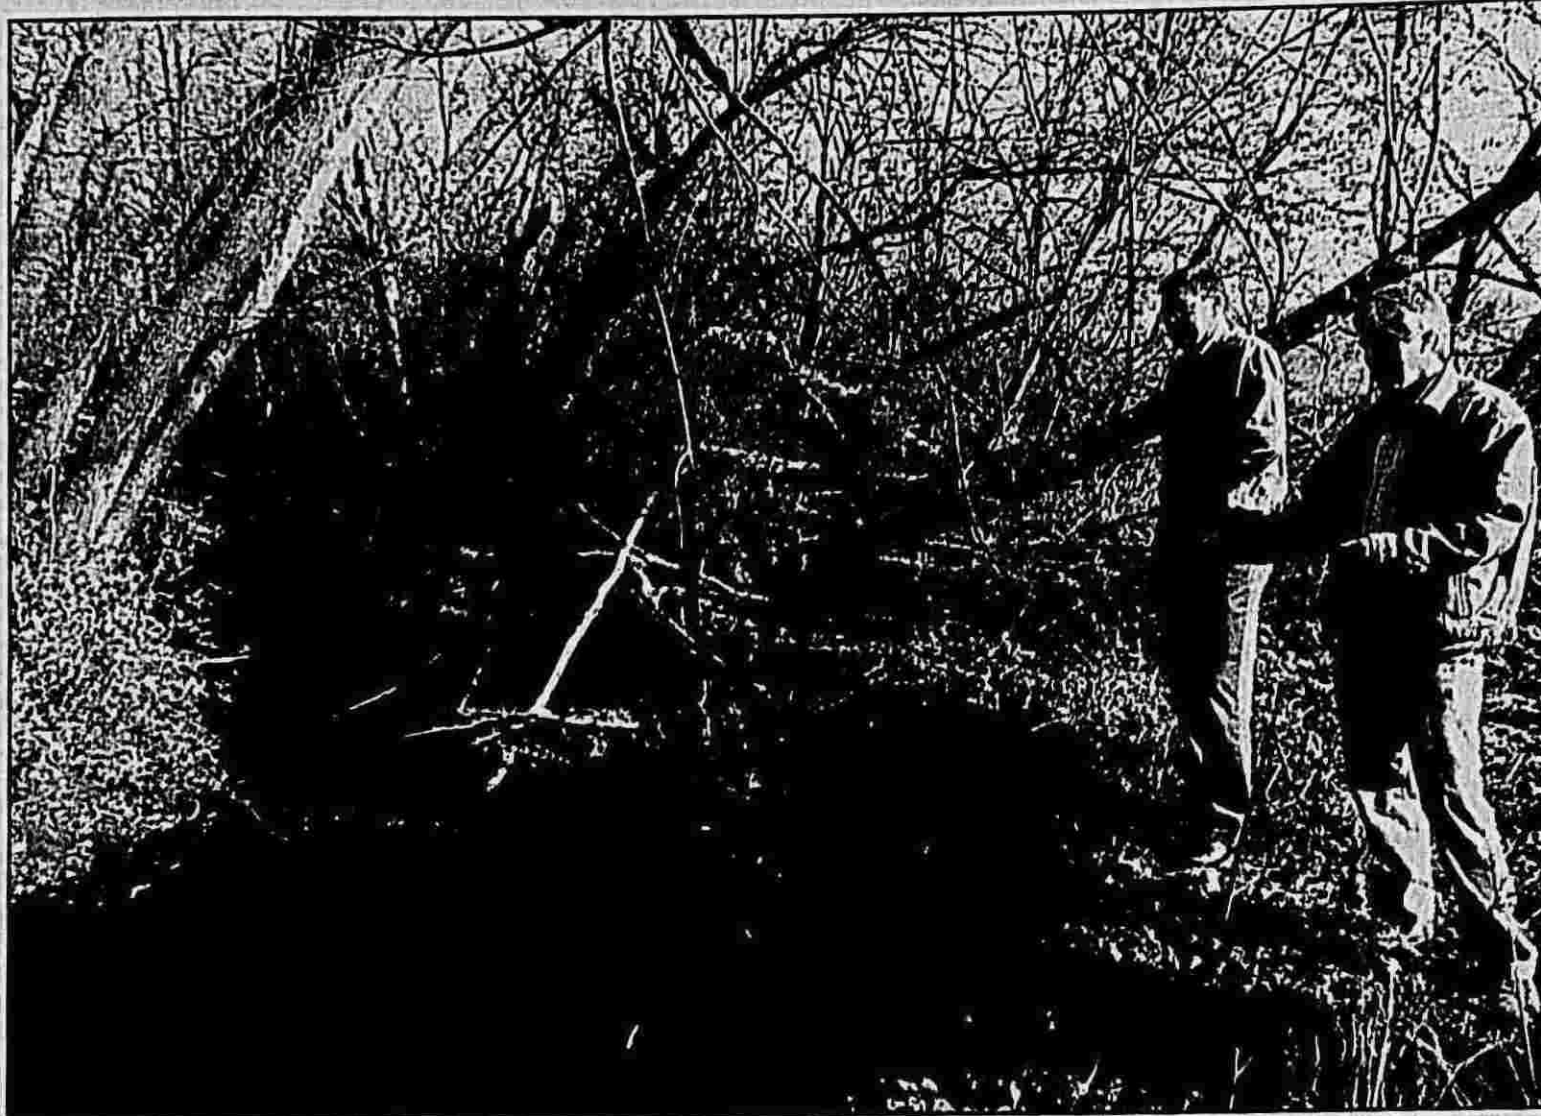

Lake County Forest Preserves' land acquisition committee voted to approve the agreement Nov. 8, and full board approval came Nov. 13.

The Liberty Township Open Space District is expected to officially vote on the matter soon.

According to Liberty Prairie Conservancy, significant gifts were received from Strachan and Vivian Donnelly, and Liz and Dick Uhllein of Lake Forest, to make the purchase possible.

The acquisition paves the way for eventual construction of a trail that will connect the 32-mile Des Plaines River Trail at Independence Grove Forest Preserve in Libertyville to a 14-mile regional trail system.

The system will include

On Milwaukee Avenue (Route 21) south of Casey Road, the Casey property has 20 acres of agricultural fields and a farmhouse built during the Civil War.

It also includes one of the last unprotected stretches of Bulls Brook, known for its water quality and aquatic wildlife habitat.

"This is an exciting moment for our members, our partners and residents of Lake County. Casey Farm is an important and scenic reminder of Lake County's heritage," said Jeffrey Sundberg, president of the Liberty Prairie Conservancy. "We are also thrilled to acquire property that allows a connection between two regional trails, significantly expanding recreational opportunities for county residents."

More money, more problems for Condell, Blue Cross

Hospital sues insurance company for $25.9 million

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

LIBERTYVILLE - Condell Medical Center's legal affairs just keep coming.

The Libertyville-based hospital filed a lawsuit against Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois Nov. 2 in the Cook County Circuit Court for $25.9 million from the insurance company.

According to the suit, Condell states the money is for payments of services that Condell provided and Blue Cross has not paid for. The suit states Condell has not received payments from Blue Cross since June.

Condell's CFO Andy Stefo released a statement as to why the company decided to sue Blue Cross for the money.

"The courts already agreed with Condell that Blue Cross was in breach of our contract by withholding the approximately $26 million owed to us," Stefo said. "We're now taking the next step of asking the court to make Blue Cross pay us with this money, because $26 million is far too much money for this hospital to go without. This money goes to pay for nurses salaries, buy medication and technology, and pay for therapies, and treatments that our patients need."

Jack Segal, vice president of public affairs with Blue Cross, objected to the lawsuit in a written statement.

"It is Condell that owes Blue Cross money. In fact, as of this June, Blue Cross had paid the hospital about $30 million in advance payments," Segal said. "This amount is well above the total dollar amount due [to] Condell in claims for our members' care. If you subtract the amount Blue Cross owed for the claims from the amount Blue Cross paid in advance, it is clear Condell still owes Blue Cross several million dollars."

Timeline

Sept. 26: Blue Cross and Blue Shields of Illinois cuts off negotiations with Condell Medical Center.
Oct. 1: Condell begins to bill Blue Cross patients.
Nov. 2: Independent physicians are no longer contracted through Blue Cross at Condell. Condell files lawsuit against Blue Cross for $25.9 million.

Condell's suit comes after a judge ruled in October that Blue Cross had breached its contract with Condell and the hospital could terminate its contract with Blue Cross.

But HMO patients might have their own hospital issues to worry about. Condell Health Care System's Physician Hospital Organization also recently announced that it will break ties with Blue Cross.

Calls were not returned to confirm why Condell Health Care System terminated the contract.

Health department gets $2-million grant

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center's Family Life Education program has received a $2 million, five-year Adolescent Family Life Prevention Demonstration grant, according to a release from the department.

The grant money will be used to fund the Families in Our Community United for Success (FOCUS) program, which will provide and evaluate abstinence education activities and services targeting North Chicago youth and their parents.

The grant was awarded at $475,000 for the first year and, at least, $400,000 a year for the next four years, according to the release.

"This grant will allow us to continue reaching out to help make Lake County a healthier place to live for parents, children and families," Dale Galassie, the Health Department's executive director, said in a statement.

The program's goal is to reduce births to teens younger than 18 in North Chicago by instilling in participants the desire to abstain from sexual activity and other negative risk behaviors through education, family connectedness, affirmation of cultural values, and a commitment to positive life goals, according to the release.

A positive youth development approach is central in all FOCUS programming and allows for community involvement in a variety of ways such as youth recognition, leadership opportunities and community service.

The FOCUS grant application contained 32 partnership agreements and letters of support from educational, civic, business,

About the program

The following is what FOCUS program will offer:

- School and community-based abstinence education to sixth-, seventh-, and eighth-grade students, in the first year, then continuing into high school in the following years.

- Skill-building for parents, so they can be the primary sexual health educators for their children.

- Training for parents on enhancing "parent-child connectedness" and other regularly scheduled events and activities that support family communication.

- Academic support and mentoring for all participants.

- Involvement in cultural enrichment activities and service projects in a variety of settings for all participants.

service and faith organizations located in and serving North Chicago residents, according to the release.

Family Life Education has had two similar OAPP grants during the past 10 years for programs targeting teens in Waukegan.

From 1999 to 2004 Waukegan saw births by teens decrease from 17.5 percent to 12.5 percent of overall births. A steady decline in births by teens younger than 18 resulted in an overall birth rate drop of 2.4 percent, with births to African Americans decreasing by 5.1 percent and births to Latinas decreasing, according to the release.

This grant was provided by the Department of Health and Human Services Office of Population Affairs under their Office of Adolescent Pregnancy Programs (OAPP).

Catering to Hispanic culture

Lakemoor business offers free tasting of Hispanic menu

Get a taste of Hispanic culture

LAKEMOOR – With the growing Hispanic population utilizing many aspects of businesses, more and more business owners are opening their eyes to the market and catering to the Hispanic culture's needs.

But there are those business owners who have known and embraced that market all along.

"Our biggest strength is that we understand the [Hispanic] culture" said Paul Gasior, owner of The Lakemoor, a banquet and catering hall at the intersection of Route 120 and Darrell Road in Lakemoor.

Gasior is a certified chef and has owned The Lakemoor for 17 years. For 15 of those years he has offered a Hispanic menu, complementing the usual American food that most other banquets carry.

"As an [American] culture, [many] don't give respect to the Hispanic cuisine" Gasior said. "Here we show full respect for it; we make our food from scratch, fresh, and from Hispanic recipes."

But you don't have to take his word for it. On Sunday, Nov. 18, Gasior is hosting his first free tasting of The Lakemoor's Hispanic menu.

People who are planning a celebration will have a chance to try Mexican dishes like Barbacoa (barbecued meat), and chicken or pork mole (chili gravy).

The buffet style tasting starts at noon and ends at 4 p.m. Reservations are required and there is a limit of four people for each family.

And, if a family books a date for an event on the day of the tasting, the prices for 2007 will be honored, Gasior said. The menu prices will increase starting in January of 2008, he said.

Gasior said the reason he decided to host the tasting was to let the Hispanic community know that they are welcomed.

"I've worked in places where people were not welcoming of other cultures, we want them [Hispanic people] to feel the warmth," he said.

And that is why long-time customer Eriberito Valencia from Ingleside, patronizes The Lakemoor banquets.

"They have great service and I'm always satisfied" Valencia said.

He said he first used the services of The Lakemoor in 1995 for the celebration of his daughter's quinceañera. Valencia said that since then he's been going to The Lakemoor for all of his celebrations; the last one being his 50th birthday this May.

For that celebration Valencia said, "We invited 350 people but around 500 people showed up instead, and he [Gasior] never stopped cooking until all my guests were fed."

Gasior said 70 percent of his business comes from Mexican customers, which is why he is willing to do what it takes to keep them coming back.

"The thing that's interesting about Mexico is that you can have the same dish and have it made, in different ways and with different ingredients," he said.

Gasior added that he custom makes his dishes and will even take recipes from his customers.

Company looks to brighten holidays

Home Instead Senior Care collects, gives gifts to Lake County seniors

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

A local company is sponsoring a special holiday campaign designed to brighten the lives of hundreds of local seniors.

Home Instead Senior Care has teamed up with local community organizations, retailers and volunteers to collect, wrap and deliver gifts to needy or lonely seniors in Lake County.

This year's campaign will focus on isolated seniors, some of whom are among this nation's "elder orphans," according to a release.

"We see older adults who have no one during this festive season and that makes for a very sad and lonely time," Cindy Madson, owner of the Home Instead Senior Care office in Grayslake, said in a statement. "Whether they are in a nursing home or in their own homes, where more are choosing to stay, it's important to reach out to isolated older adults during this special time of the year."

Home Instead Senior Care's Be a Santa to a Senior program will provide a boost for older adults during the holidays, according to the release. The campaign has become the largest gift-giving project of its kind for older adults.

The program is from Nov. 10 to Dec. 7.

Prior to the holiday season, the participating local nonprofit organizations will identify needy, orphaned and isolated seniors in the community and provide those names to Home Instead Senior Care.

Christmas trees at Sunset Foods in Libertyville and the Community Trust Credit Unions in Grayslake and Gurnee, will feature ornaments with the first names only of the needy seniors and their respective gift requests.

Holiday shoppers can pick up an ornament, buy items on the list and return them unwrapped to the store, along with the senior ornament attached. Home Instead Senior Care then enlists the volunteer help of its staff, senior-care business associates, nonprofit workers and others to collect, wrap and distribute the gifts to these seniors.

Boy Scout Troop No. 77 will wrap the gifts Dec. 10 at the Home Instead Senior Care Office, 100 N. Atkinson Road, Suite 203 in Grayslake.

In 2006, 196,500 lonely, needy seniors across North America received 312,500 gifts through this program, according to the release. Moreover, 21,000 volunteers supported Santa during last year's holiday season, with 1,500 locations across North America hosting a tree.

"Be a Santa to a Senior is an annual holiday tradition that is changing the way many view the needs of seniors during the holidays," Madson said. "We hope that the community will support our efforts as a way of giving back to the seniors in our area who have given us so much."

CLC establishes scholarship for 'average' student

A new scholarship fund for College of Lake County students has been established by the CLC Foundation, thanks to a $196,840 gift from the estate of Patricia J. Hedstrom, a long-time assistant to retired Illinois State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis of Zion.

Three scholarships per semester will be awarded, starting in fall 2008. The Patricia J. Hedstrom Scholarship Fund is designed for graduates of Lake County high schools who demonstrate financial need and who have grade-point averages no higher than 3.0 out of 4.0.

"It is apparent that Patricia Hedstrom truly had a heart for education and for assisting 'average' students in their pursuit of their educational goals," said CLC Foundation Executive Director William L. Devore, CFRE.

Each scholarship will cover tuition costs up to 15 credit hours and also may be used for fees, books and other expenses.

The CLC Foundation is a volunteer-based group that conducts fundraising for scholarships and a variety of projects and programs in support of the College of Lake County. For more information, call the Foundation at 847-543-2091.

Keep 'em clear of constitution

Should Illinois voters next year call for a constitutional convention to rewrite the state's constitution?

It's a tough decision, one that Illinoisans face every 20 years.

The constitution establishes how the state and its residents are governed. It assigns authoritative power to the various branches of government, determines how laws are approved, etc.

The first constitution of Illinois was adopted in 1818. The current constitution was written and adopted in 1970 and went into effect in 1971. In 1988, the last time the constitutional question went before voters, it was soundly defeated by a 3-to-1 margin.

The constitution should be changed once in a while to reflect the new realities of an evolving democratic society. And because it's been nearly 40 years since the last constitution was written, it might be time for a new one.

Perhaps the question that voters should be asking is this: Do we really want this current group of lawmakers to have anything to do with it?

If voters in November 2008 say it's time for Illinois to update its constitution, the state Legislature would decide how to do that. State lawmakers would establish the format of the constitutional convention and pick the delegates that would write the new document. Lawmakers even could assign themselves as the delegates.

Given the recent successes in Springfield, that would be a scary proposition.

Let us summarize.

Lawmakers can't pass a state budget in the time they are allotted. They can't figure out what to do about the CTA and RTA. They can't pass a capital improvement plan. They can't fix how the state funds education.

Would we really trust this group to rewrite our constitution?

We've got about a year to ponder that question.

And lawmakers have the same amount of time to change our minds.

Schools to receive increase in funding

State Sen. Bill Peterson, R-Long Grove, announced that schools in the 26th Senate District will receive nearly $10 million dollars in increased school funding. This comes as a result of the General Assembly's recent actions, according to a release.

An agreement was reached last week that provided the legal language to release an increase in funds to the schools, Peterson said the figures he is releasing are the best available estimates, as provided by the State Board of Education. Final figures could vary slightly, in part because figures for local property tax receipts might not be final.

This year, schools will receive a $400 increase for each pupil in the state aid's foundation level - an increase from $5,334 a student to $5,734. In addition, Peterson said the state budget provides 100 percent funding of "mandated categorical" grants such as special education, transportation and lunch reimbursement for low-income students.

No school district in the area will receive less money than it did last year, according to the release.

The list below is the estimated amount of increased funding for local school districts, according to the release.

Big Hollow School District 38
$816,784
Diamond School District 38
$184,027
Fremont School District 79
$286,367
Libertyville Community High School District 128 $435,711
Libertyville School District 70
$448,564
Mundelein Consolidated High School District 120 $239,862
Mundelein Elementary School District 75 $238,383

Round Lake Area Schools District 116 $5,755,966

Estimates are based on the Illinois State Board of Education numbers, which are based on average daily attendance and property tax numbers, some of which might not be final.

Early-bird gets the train

Last April, Metra launched a new early-morning "reverse commute" train, called the Sunrise Express, to respond to the needs of businesses in the north suburbs. Now, six months later, ridership consistently exceeds 200 passengers daily on the southbound trip, according to a release from the office State Sen. Susan Garrett, D-Lake Forest. The passenger number far exceeds the anticipated number of riders at this point, the release states.

Sunrise Express was funded in part by a State of Illinois grant and a Job Access Reverse Commute (JARC) grant obtained through the efforts of the Lake County Commuter businesses, schools, hospital, legislators, a group of municipalities, and chambers of commerce. These groups worked with Metra for more than two years to make the new train possible. Garrett is one of the co-chairs of the coalition and coordinated the funding effort.

"We are very pleased, but not surprised, by the positive response the Sunrise Express has received from Metra riders," Garrett said.

What budget crisis?

To the editor:

As the Illinois State Legislature begins its fall term, we hear from the Democratic leadership about the need for more funding. The Democratic House and Senate leadership say that unless they raise the state income tax, the State will go bankrupt.

We saw an attempt to increase sales taxes to fund the Regional Transportation Authority, but with solid Republican opposition that flopped.

The Springfield tax-raisers now will try imaginative new ways to increase fees, tolls, levies, charges, assessments, etc. These tax raisers say they need more funding for essential services, for the children in public schools. We have all heard the same tired story for years.

How bad is state funding and revenues? A close look tells a much different story. I would hope our newspapers would not let our public officials continue to spread lies and misinformation regarding state revenues.

Last fiscal year ending June 30, 2007, state tax revenue increased $2.8 billion or 4.8 percent more than the previous year. Every new tax they have proposed would bring in substantially less than the $2.8 billion that flowed from economic growth and the Bush tax cuts.

In the past five fiscal years 2002 thru 2007, total tax revenue increased by $14 billion or 29.1 percent, nearly two and one half times the rate of inflation, which was 12 percent for that time period.

Budget crisis? What budget crisis?

The Democrats in Springfield have a spending crisis.

The Republican tax cuts of President Bush are paying off.

October offered a much higher than expected increase of 166,000 non-form payroll jobs; there was a higher than expected 3.9 percent growth rate in the third quarter; inflation in the third quarter rose at a 3.8 percent annual rate, with $96 a barrel oil, and is well under control.

Our deficit has fallen to $163 billion or 1.2 percent of the gross domestic product, its lowest level in five years.

It always amazes me how the media joins the tax raisers in promoting the idea of a funding crisis and the need for more money, and ignore how the Bush and Republican tax cuts positively affect the econo-

Work to save climate

To the editor:

Global warming is a reality that we must address. One step in the right direction is to support the strongest fuel-efficiency standard possible through passage of the Safe Climate Act.

Increasing the fuel economy of new cars, SUVs and other light trucks is vital to curbing global warming.

These vehicles consume more than 9 million barrels of oil a day and are the source of 20 percent of the nation's heat-trapping pollution that causes global warming. Improving the fuel-economy performance of new vehicles is the cleanest, cheapest and fastest way to tame our growing dependence on oil.

Unless Congress takes meaningful steps to cut our oil addiction, the Department of Energy estimates that the United States will continue to import about 60 percent of its oil for the foreseeable future.

We need our representatives in Congress to work toward solutions such as funding renewable-energy sources and increasing car fuel-economy standards.

To find out more, visit www.illinoisshotseat.org. Then contact U.S. Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Barrington, at 202-225-3711.

Urge her to co-sponsor the Safe Climate Act.

Winter conditions rough on roads

With winter approaching in the next month, I thought I would write about an issue that has bugged me; and that's the high costs to build and maintain our highways.

With the ever increasing traffic volume, it is evident that maintaining highways will always be a budget problem, but I would think there are always ways to cut costs.

If you ask the average citizen what they think causes the highways to deteriorate, they will place the blame on the increasing number and weight of trucks using the roads.

That might be a factor, and we know that truck speeds and demands to meet truck hauling timelines are a safety hazard issue. But, governments also ought to study and investigate why our highways don't last.

When I see road improvements needed, I am the person who thinks that materials being used might at times be deficient in some way.

My suspicions were verified years back when a road contractor was prosecuted for using inferior road products on a tollway project.

Some years ago, governments turned to the use of asphalt rather than concrete as a way to save money for highway construction.

John S. Matijevich

I'm not sure that the change saved that much.

The concrete projects used a much thicker base until contractors realized that to compete with asphalt bids, they had to "cut corners."

I have never bought into the notion that asphalt highways last as long as concrete highways. Asphalt is all right for overlay projects and roads that have less traffic. Governments must consider that costs must be weighed, both short-term and long-term.

In the late '90s, Illinois took a forward step by mandating in law that major highway projects must have at least a 30-year life expectancy. The recently completed Dan Ryan reconstruction project will have a 30- to 40-year life cycle.

It has an extra thick base of "continuously reinforced concrete" and, although its initial costs were high, the life cycle makes its cost-benefit ratio worth it.

A short road "life span" can "short-change" the environment, too.

Another road-related issue is the high cost of rock salt to melt snow and ice from the roads. Is there an excessive use of rock salt? I've seen trucks aggressively spreading rock salt in anticipation of snow that never came.

They warn us that too much table salt is bad for our heart; can too much rock salt be bad for our roads?

We do know that too much rock salt can do significant harm to inland lakes, rivers, and streams.

It is important for governments to monitor the types and amounts of rock salt used on the roads. Some forward-looking communities are using environment-friendly low-salt mixes.

Less rock salt can mean the roads might last longer and the rivers and streams won't be as negatively affected.

For the sake of taxpayers who foot the bill for projects, governments must be aggressive to check and double-check on the progress and work of extensive projects.

Art Gallery bends reality

Wright Community Gallery of Art in Grayslake. Artist Bert Menco, of Evanston, also will have work displayed at the gallery.

Artists display their work in new 'Daydreams and Night Dreams' exhibit

By JOSEPH MULLER
jmuller@nwnewsgroup.com

Art enthusiasts are invited to delve into their subconscious with the works of artists Karena Karras and Bert Menco, which are on display at College of Lake County free of charge. The new exhibit, called "Daydreams and Night Dreams," will be open to the public through Dec. 14.

The artists named the exhibition "Daydreams and Night Dreams" because they thought it captured the essence of their art, Menco said. He added that daydreams are meant to signify his works, while Karras's paintings embody night dreams.

"Their works complement each other well," said Steve Jones, CLC Art Gallery Curator.

The artists also live near each other — Menco lives in Evanston and Karras lives in Chicago — and said they knew each other prior to this art exhibit.

While reaching similar artistic destinations, Menco and Karras have traversed very different lives.

Menco was born in the Netherlands, and his interest in art was sparked by his grandfather, as well as a childhood neighbor. While choosing to follow a career in science (he served as a Research Associate Professor in Neurobiology at Northwestern University from 1982 to 2006), he still developed his artistic talents.

Karras said she has focused most of her life on making art, drawing winged mice and elegantly-clothed animals since the age of 4. Different experiences in her childhood and adolescent life bolstered her confidence as an artist, she said. In sixth grade, she taught a class of fourth-graders how to draw a leaf; during seventh grade, she won a trip to Springfield for a peace drawing she made; she also won a scholarship to The Art Institute of Chicago after graduating high school.

Karras's other sources of inspiration can be found in the themes of her paintings, she said.

"I receive much of my inspiration from nature and from books on philosophy, psychology, and metaphysics," she said. "But blood-red sunsets and being in a heavily-wooded area where everything is lush and full of beauty is the deepest source of inspiration for me."

Menco said science does not directly influence his work. Rather, he said, the stern discipline needed to study science and do research seeps into his artistic creations.

"A piece of work taking a half [of a] year isn't uncommon for me," he said.

Menco's main source of inspiration is his inner self, he said. But he added that particular muses also help in the creation of his art, including his Netherlands heritage, former significant relationships, and historical figures and events.

Menco asked those who view his art to look for "whatever they see in themselves."

'Mr. Magorium' forces a world of fantasy

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
sidetracks@nwnewsjournal.com

Whimsy is the worst thing a filmmaker can force on an audience. Magic is the second worst.

Yet for 90 minutes, writer-director Zach Helm shoves whimsy and magic down his audience's throat, scarcely allowing a moment to breathe in "reality" in "Mr. Magorium's Wonder Emporium."

Helm seems to think we should understand this enforced cuteness.

"What part of magical toy store don't you understand?" asks Molly Mahoney (Natalie Portman), manager of Mr. Magorium's Wonder Emporium, a three-story, multicolored Victorian building dwarfed by its neighboring Manhattan skyscrapers. The store brims with magic.

Kids play there all day long. The Playmobil figures and stuffed animals are alive. Balls bounce of their own volition. Paper airplanes fly themselves.

Why, even Kermit the Frog shops there.

Helm should have taken a closer look at his obvious inspiration, "Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory," where we witnessed Charlie Bucket's very non-magical life for nearly an hour before weird Willy Wonka appeared.

Following "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" author Roald Dahl's lead, the makers of that film knew to ease viewers into the fantastic.

"Mr. Magorium" drops us splat into the fantastical deep end without a flotation device. Straight off we are told that owner Mr. Magorium (Dustin Hoffman) is 243 years old, once made toys for Napoleon (to pass the time on Elba, I suppose) and was friends with Thomas like the aliens from "This Island Earth."

If "Mr. Magorium" overflows with whimsy and magic, it lacks dramatic tension. The young boy narrating the story, Eric (Zach Mills), informs us in the first minute that Mr. Magorium is about to die. Mr. Magorium wants to give his store to Molly, who experiences a sudden lack of self-confidence at the news.

Will she continue to believe in magic after Mr. Magorium has gone? Helm, who kidded mortality in his script for "Stranger Than Fiction," deserves credit for making a kids movie about death being a natural part of life. It's a courageous artistic goal, actually, and grief counselors someday might recommend showing the movie to children shortly before or after they lose a grandparent.

The inspirational dialogue is so simple that it will register best with children.

"Your life is an occasion; rise to it," Mr. Magorium says.

"Turn the page," says Eric the narrator. "Continue reading, and let the next story begin."

These moments have some resonance, but Helm's script is too predictable overall. To make sure the store's finances are in order before Molly inherits it, Mr. Magorium hires an accountant, Henry (Jason Bateman).

You get no prize for guessing that the by-the-numbers Henry doesn't believe in magic and that he and Molly clash from the start.

Eric is the fourth major character, which is a lot for a 90-minute film. The 9-year-old is the store's sole employee (apparently child labor laws don't apply to magical toy store owners) and is lonely because the other children consider him weird.

This is more bad writing. Kids think Eric is weird only because the script says so. He doesn't look or act unusual, and you'd think working at a magical toy store would make him popular, not a pariah.

So as Mr. Magorium's death approaches, we are supposed to wonder whether Molly will gain self-confidence, whether Henry will believe in magic, and whether Eric will find a friend.

Again, this will play best with the youngest of children, because no one older than 5 will experience any suspense waiting for the outcome. Especially not those who believe in magic.

'Meet Me in St. Louis' re-creates a simpler time

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

"Meet Me in St. Louis" caught fire in 1944 as a film starring Judy Garland before it made a successful transition to the stage in 1969.

Now, its charm and warmth shines through in a polished revival at Drury Lane Theatre under Jim Corti's direction.

Set in St. Louis around the time of the 1904 World's Fair (known as the Louisiana Purchase Exposition), the musical evokes nostalgic yearning for a simpler time exemplified by the principal characters, who comprise a household of kindly parents Alonso and Anna Smith.

Romance blooms for two starry-eyed daughters, Rose and Esther, while two young siblings, Agnes and Tootie (Rae Gray and Kamilah Lay, in a plucky performance), hone their skills at impertinence. An older brother, Lon (Stephen Schellhardt), is college bound, and a grandfather (David Kortemeier) lends comfort whenever and wherever needed.

The love story moves along swimmingly until Alonso

Songs by Hugh Martin and Ralph Blane, snappy choreography by Tammy Ader, period costumes by Tatjana Radisic, and a cast of excellent artists brings it all together. Brian Bembridge's smoothly-changing set further adds to the drama.

Even the skimpy band on stage, pared down to five members and conducted by pianist Margaret James, has only a minimal dampening effect.

Chicago takes on the world

Cultural institutions join together for Festival of Maps

Mapping our past

Chicago is ready to take on the world this season with a citywide Festival of Maps event that involves more than 30 cultural and scientific institutions.

According to the event's Web site, www.festival-ofmaps.org, Festival of Maps is a "unique collaboration that features maps, globes, artifacts and artworks and tracks the evolving technology of wayfinding from ancient to modern times."

For those who have ever looked at a map and wondered what stories are behind it, how it was made, and how maps have evolved through the years, this exhibition is for you.

The Adler Planetarium and The Field Museum are two of the institutions involved in the project and have created exhibits for the event.

Adler Planetarium

Adler Planetarium will host Mapping the Universe, an exhibition with three sections.

The first section, Mapping the Stars, showcases one of the first published celestial globes, the Mercator globe.

The globe was created in the 16th century by the Flemish geographer and cartographer Gerhard Mercator and shows an early technique for mass producing globes.

The second section of the exhibit, Mapping the Moon, tells the history of the Moon, a celebrated celestial body in many cultures.

Pictured below is a celestial globe by Willem Blaeu. The globe was created in Amsterdam, circa 1630. The globe stands more than 6 feet tall and, because of its size, has never been publicly displayed before. (Adler Collection)

Also pictured below is a pocket globe by Johann Baptist Homann. The globe was created in Nuremberg, circa 1715. (Adler Collection)

Photos provided by the Adler Planetarium

The third section, Mapping the Cosmos, displays theoretical diagrams that include a diagram of the 15th-century idea that the Earth's location is at the center of the universe.

Combining science, philosophy, religion, and art, each map in this exhibition reveals the perspective and purpose of those who created it, according to the Adler's Web site, www.adlerplanetarium.org.

The Field Museum

Take a look back in time through maps with The Field Museum's new exhibit Maps: Finding Our Place in the World.

The exhibit offers a display of maps from clay tablets to sea charts, as well as sketches of worlds real and

Brussels sprouts get glazed

JEAN KRESSY
editorial@relishmag.com

Brussels sprouts, named after the Belgian capital, originated in northern Europe and were probably first cultivated in this country in the early 19th century.

Much of what is written about cooking Brussels sprouts reads like a warning label. "Don't overcook, don't undercook, braise slowly, steam quickly!"

We took the easy way by combining two tried-and-true cooking methods, boiling and sautéing.

Maple-glazed Brussels sprouts (Serves 6)

Ingredients

1 1/2 pounds Brussels sprouts, bottoms trimmed, halved

1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
1/4 cup maple syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 small onion, cut into slivers

1 red bell pepper, cut into thin strips

Directions

Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Drop Brussels sprouts in the boiling water and cook 2 minutes. Drain, rinsing with cold water.

Whisk together soy sauce, mustard, maple syrup, salt and pepper. Set aside.

Heat oil in a heavy nonstick skillet. Add onion and red bell pepper; sauté 5 minutes. Add Brussels sprouts. Sauté 4 minutes.

Add soy sauce mixture. Cook until vegetables are coated and glaze thickens, about 2 minutes. Serve immediately.

Free HomeFinder Service Helps Lake County Homebuyers Buy Beautiful Homes From $200,000 To $400,000 For Zero Down

Lake County, Illinois
Thursday, November 15, 2007

I'm Doug Anderson with Blue Fence Real Estate. I started this service because many consumers think they need tens of thousands of dollars to buy a $200,000 to $500,000 home these days. You may have talked with Realtors or Lenders who have told you that you need $30,000, $50,000 or even $70,000 to buy a home in Lake County.

Five years ago that may have been the case, but it is no longer true. As a matter of fact, right now there are loans that enable you to buy a $200,000 to $400,000 house for absolutely zero down payment.

It's easy to learn what homes and home loans are available with my new HomeFinder Service. Each night my HomeFinder computers access the Lake County area Multiple Listing Service and search through all the information on every home listed in the entire area by every real estate company.

The computers sift and sort through all of the new listings, automatically finding and matching the homes that meet your exact specifications. The system then mails, or if you prefer, automatically faxes or e-mails you that information on a daily, weekly or twice-weekly basis... your choice.

The HomeFinder Service gives you access to inside information normally available only to real estate agents. From the privacy of your home, on a daily basis, you receive information about every single home available in the area of your choice, and you receive this information even before many other real estate agents have seen it!

As you receive information about homes you're interested in, you can study, compare, and drive by the properties on your own. When you find a home, you'd like to see, all you need to do is give us a call and we'll make arrangements to get you inside the home at your convenience.

My HomeFinder team is totally service oriented. We're not typical salespeople. At no time will you ever feel any pressure to buy a home. When you find the perfect home, you'll know it. And then you'll tell us.

In addition to the HomeFinder Service, our team has a HomeFinder computer network that searches through 324 home loan programs to find the best home loan programs for you. This allows us to find the very best loan to meet your personal objectives - be it low interest rate, low monthly payments, or zero down payment.

As you can well imagine, there's just too much to tell you about in this brief article, but it's easy for you to get more information. For more information give me a call at 847-984-0721 and I will take care of the rest.

The restaurant features 19 varieties of FOLDOVERS, as well as specialty and traditional pizza. Owner Ryan, a local Round Lake resident, said he developed the concept of the FOLDOVER to offer the customer more variety. A FOLDOVER is a pizza crust folded over and stuffed with different ingredients, baked, then opened and filled with fresh condiments for a satisfying meal.

Choose from a wide range of FOLDOVERS, such as Monterey chicken, meatball, buffalo chicken, taco, chicken cordon bleu, and steak fajita, just to name a few. I tried the B.L.T. and enjoyed a delicious combination of bacon, red sauce, onions, mozzarella cheese, fresh lettuce, and tomatoes. All selections are made to order, so expect to wait 10 to 15 minutes. Prices are based on serving size: $6.95 for a good-sized individual serving, up to $16.95 for a FOLDOVER that serves 3 to 4 people.

FOLDOVERS also offers a tantalizing selection of specialty pizzas that includes Hawaiian pizza, taco pizza, and southwestern pizza, among others. The California white pizza I sampled was piled high with melted cheese and fresh tomatoes. Prices range from $10.95 for a small pizza, to $17.95 for the large size. Traditional thin crust, Chicago pan, and dolittle dough pizza are on the menu, as well.

But FOLDOVERS doesn't stop there. The restaurant offers appetizers like their popular garlic bread sticks, salads, and decadent desserts like Butterfinger cheesecake. All of this is served in cozy surroundings featuring a stone fireplace and wide screen TV.

With seating for 32, FOLDOVERS can accommodate groups, or call ahead and then pick up your meal at the drive up window. He added that they have daily specials and coupon offers, "We offer a medium FOLDOVER and drink, or salad and drink, for $6.95 from 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

everyday," Ryan added that they will also start offering online ordering soon, and can cater special occasions.

Ryan said FOLDOVERS has been in existence since 1998, and he attributes its success to originality, "Unlike other pizza places that just serve pizza and pasta, you can come here and eat something different every day."

Food fix

"Iron Chef America" is ESPN for foodies. Culinary heroes come to Kitchen Stadium to display their prowess with reductions, foams, and coulis - er, uh - toppings.

The Iron Chefs flambé, brûlée, and use other sexy-sounding cooking thingamabobs to achieve feats of food ingenuity.

It's a food nerd's dream. Take this from a woman who receives no fewer than four foodie magazines at her house each month.

Recently, the Food Network was looking for "The Next Iron Chef," and after several weeks of the reality show, they recently settled on chef Michael Symon. He'll join the rotation of Iron Chefs who battle at Kitchen Stadium.

Not all of us can be kitchen athletes, so here are the Iron Chefs in the minor league: "The Next Iron Chef: Toddler Mom." Soccer mom chef Betty Jones has presented the panel with Cheerios en baggie with a sprinkling of raisins. She also has prepared an apple juice and water cocktail served in sippy cup. The chef would like you to pick at the Cheerios after she pours some on a plate for you. You may chew them awhile, then allow them to stick to your chin.

"The Next Iron Chef: Bachelor" Bachelor chef John Q. Singleguy has prepared manwich ball kebab on popsicle sticks with a dipping sauce of McDonald's Ketchup packets. He also has nuked a Hot Pocket brûlée, which he has finished elegantly with an enormous welding tool to caramelize the Splenda from packets he got from the diner where he ate breakfast this morning.

Listen to the music

Marching bands are a normal part of football life. And a welcome one. After all, one can only take so much of "Who Let the Dogs Out" and "Tootsie Roll."

At this point in the football playoffs, every coach is looking for a secret weapon. Carmel coach Andy Bitto does not have to look far for his. All he needs to do is listen to the music.

Nestled amongst the usual marching band staples of trumpets, trombones, clarinets and drums, stands Carmel freshman Will Riedl. In marching band life, solos are like pure gold — a privilege bestowed upon only the ones with the most practice, skill and seniority.

But Riedl tosses his around like candy. You see, Riedl is not just any marching band member; he plays the bagpipes.

"I just thought it was a cool instrument," Riedl said simply. "I just thought it would be fun to play."

And it's apparently fun to rile up legions of Corsair fans. Whenever he warms up the pipes, the rest of his fellow band members just sit back and watch him break out traditional Scottish jigs. Meanwhile, Carmel's fans seem to explode.

"I like it; I like all the fans," Riedl said. "It definitely makes it more of a challenge because I've got so many people watching me."

Besides his ability to warm up Carmel fans, his rarity also is an added bonus for the 14-year-old freshman. David Wiebers, Carmel band director, said there is a high school in Wisconsin with an entire section of bagpipers, but as far as Illinois, Riedl truly stands in a class of his own.

"He's the top bagpiper of his age group in the Champion Supreme Midwest Division," Riedl's father, Jim, said. "His uncle is Scottish and plays too, but unfortunately not as well as Willy. So his uncle got him into it."

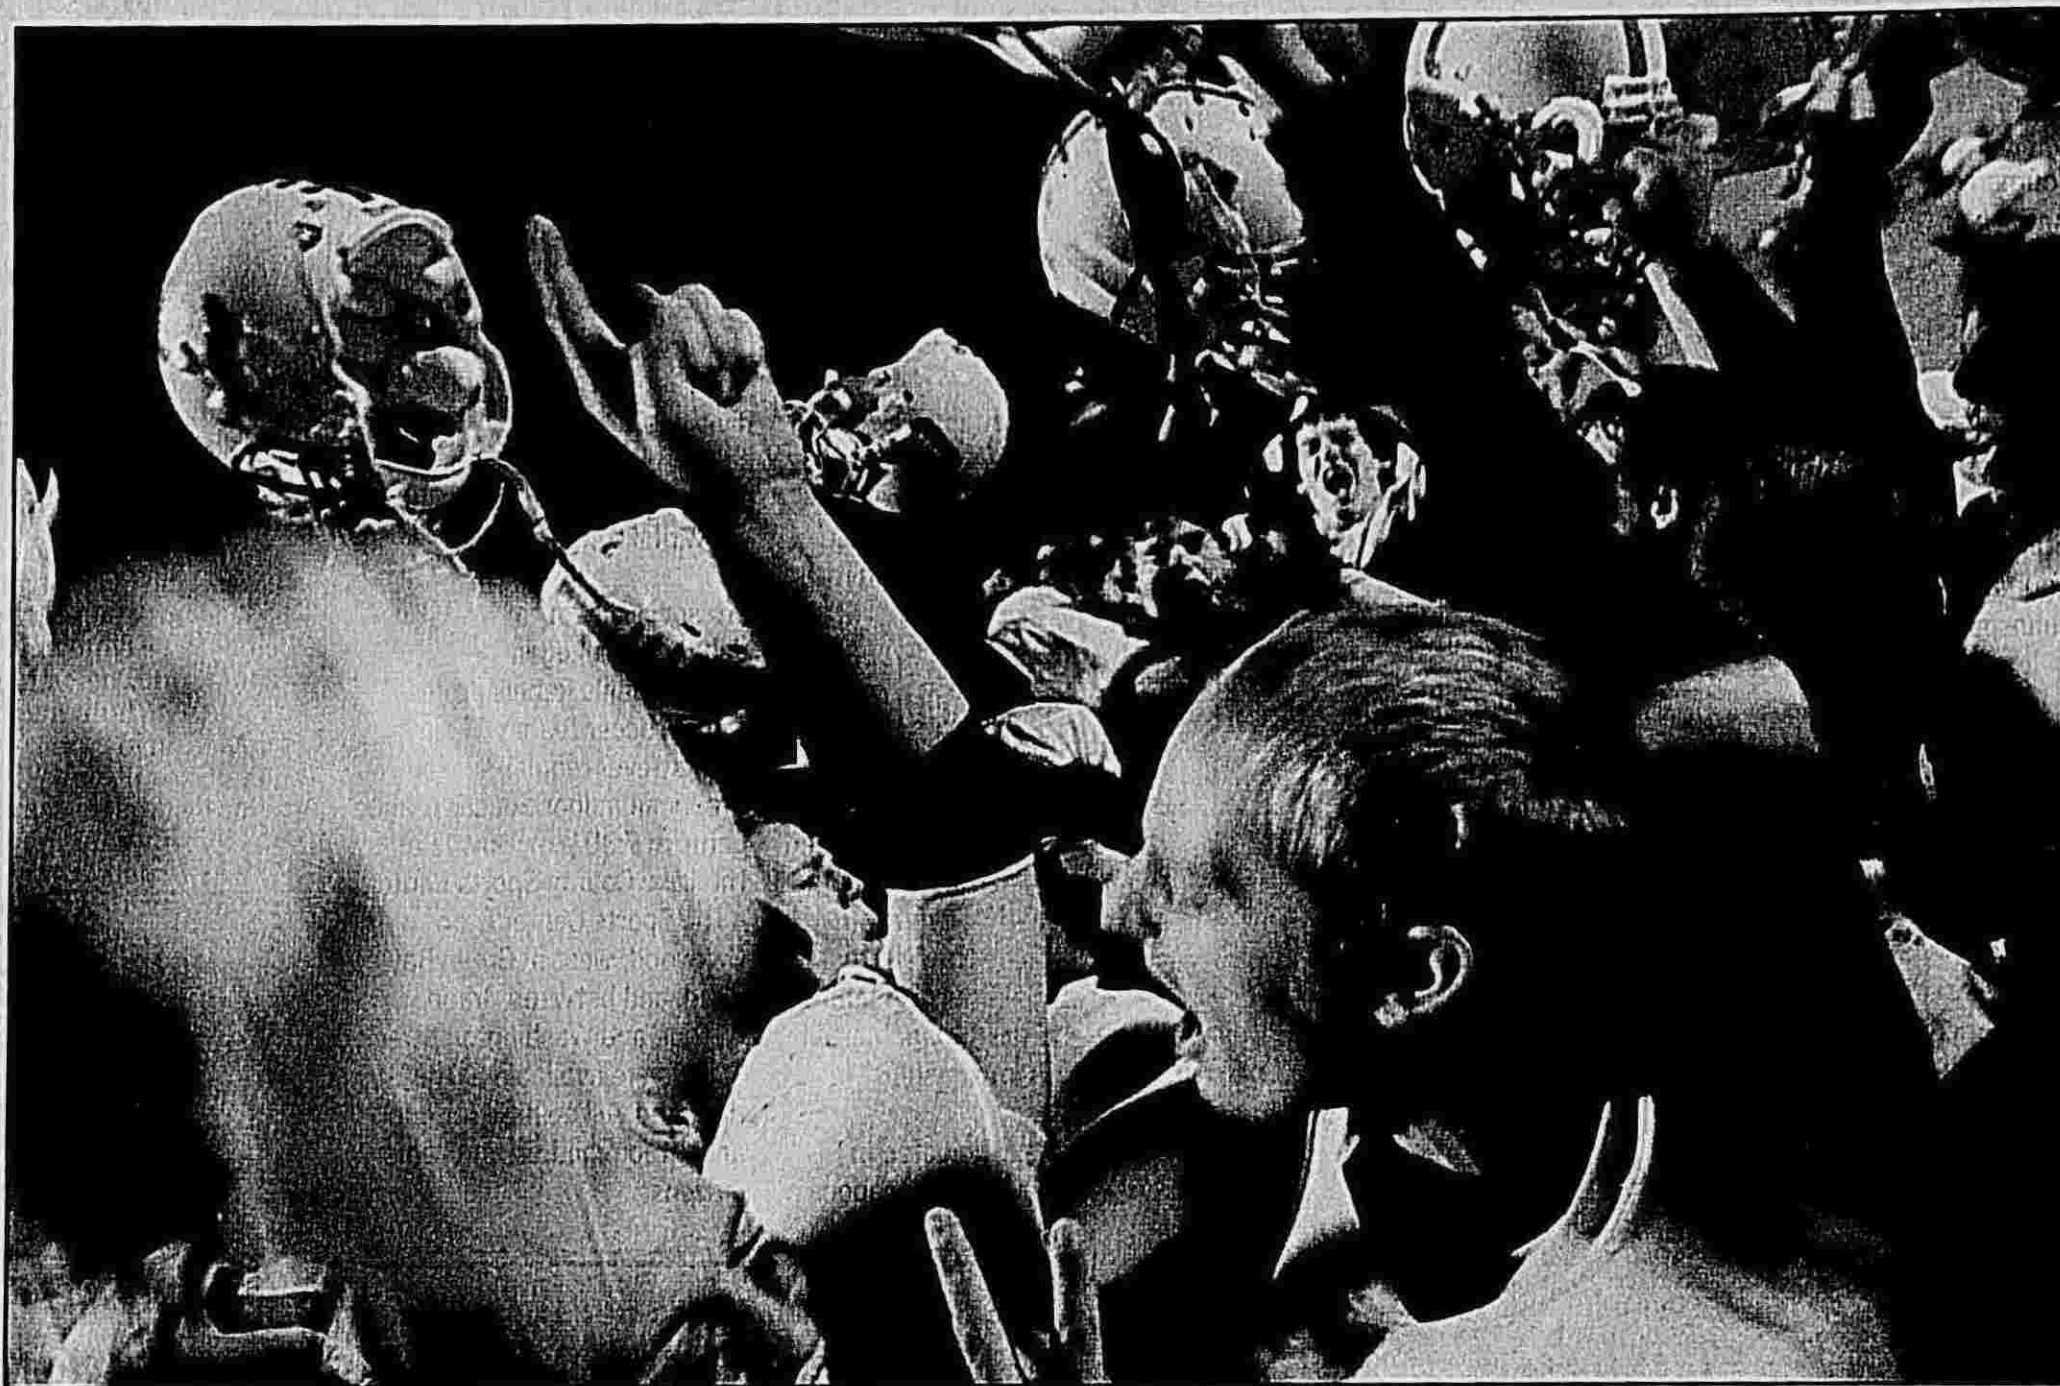

Wiebers has worked to give Riedl a chance to play during games. Wiebers said with the bagpipes' singular key, it doesn't quite work with the typical marching band show.

But with the playoffs in full swing, Carmel has its piping hot secret weapon.

Carmel defense drops De La Salle

Carmel football players celebrate after their IHSA Class 7A 16-0 playoff win against De La Salle Nov. 10. The win qualifies Carmel for the state semifinals for the first time since the team's 2003 state championship run. The Corsairs will face Lake Zurich at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17.

Corsairs advance to IHSA Class 7A football semifinals

By DANIEL J. PATRICK

CHICAGO — If there was any time to get a shutout, it's now.

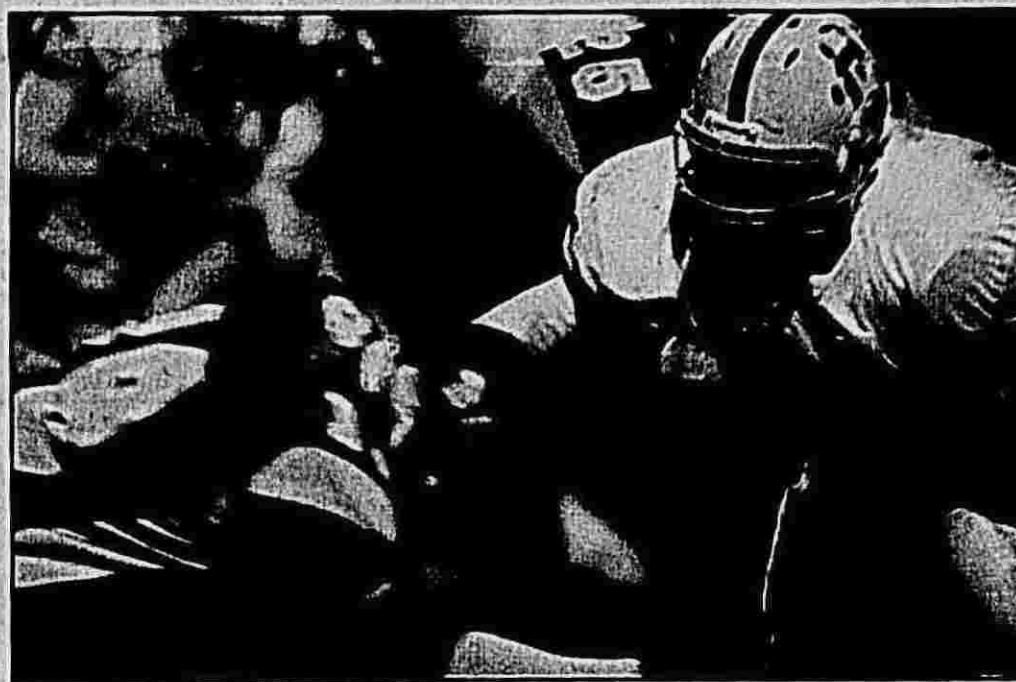

For the first time this season, the Carmel Corsairs' defense finally shut out their opponents to advance to the IHSA Class 7A semifinals. Carmel's powerful defense led the team to a 16-0 playoff win over De La Salle Nov. 10.

In the first half, Carmel jumped out to a 9-0 lead on three straight Austin Heinrichs field goals in the defensive struggle. But in the fourth quarter, the Corsair offense stepped up to the plate with a 20-play drive that took more than 10 minutes off the clock. The big 99-yard drive was capped off by 2-yard touchdown run by Geoffery Fields for the 16-0 final score.

"We just had to wear them down," Fields said. "A lot of their guys were playing both ways, so we just had to keep hitting them."

"I've never had a drive like that. We knew that if we could just keep moving, it would break their back."

With both teams caught in a virtual deadlock in the first half, De La Salle came dangerously close to scoring a game-changing touchdown. With the clock running down in the first half and a 9-0 lead on the scoreboard, Corsair coach Andy Bitto truly had a scare.

Carmel's Geoffery Fields (21) runs the ball during the team's 16-0 playoff win against De La Salle on Nov. 10. In the fourth quarter Fields contributed to the team's 99-yard drive by scoring a 2-yard rushing touchdown.

With only three seconds left, quarterback David Venegoni saw an opening in the end zone. But as Venegoni chucked the pass downfield, speedy De La Salle return man/wide receiver/defensive back Elliot Brown got in the way.

Brown interrupted the pass in the De La Salle end zone and got in touch with his inner Devin Hester, breaking tackles and running as a collective panic took over Carmel's fans. But Corsair big man Jack Baucus caught Brown after 95 yards at the Carmel 5 to end the first half.

"Coach was telling us that this guy was just like Devin Hester," Baucus said. "When I saw him grab that ball, I just thought, 'Oh my God.' Luckily, I was able to get him."

For Bitto, the terror of seeing Brown bolt his way down the field was even worse.

"I made a bad call. We never should have thrown the ball right before the half," Bitto said. "We got lucky to get that kid at our 5-yard line. If we didn't, it could have been a completely different game."

But beyond that mistake, the Corsairs played a pretty powerful game. Carmel's collective "D" was powerful enough to shut out the Meteors. Overall, De La Salle was limited to just 67 yards of total offense. Their ground game was in even worse shape, gaining minus-10 rushing yards.

For Carmel, Field led with 99 yards on 19 carries while Mike Taylor gained 82 yards and Venegoni contributed 77 yards on 20 carries. On the other side of the ball, Meteors tailback Cordero Gaston finished with 0 yards on 8 carries.

"We honestly should have four or five shutouts, but we usually just put the second unit in," Bitto said. "But our defense deserves all the credit in the world. They played shutout-type football just when we needed it."

Carmel (10-2) will play at home against 11-1 Lake Zurich next Saturday in the state semifinals. For breaking results from that game, check the Lake County Journals Web site Nov. 17.

Twenty-four points is a pretty good way to start off a season. Grayslake North senior guard Elizabeth Phillips shot her way to 24 points and two blocks to help the Knights beat nearby rival Lakes 58-36 on Tuesday night.

Carmel's multi-talented quarterback David Venegoni was back to his usual tricks against De La Salle on Nov. 10. In a pivotal semifinals game, Venegoni completed just one pass, but ran for 77 yards on 20 carries in the process.

Antioch Vikings continue to Super Bowl

This Saturday, the Antioch Viking Youth Football program could complete its ascension. On Saturday, Nov. 17, at Lake Zurich High School's football field, the Vikings will play in the Tri-County Youth Football League Super Bowl.

Antioch's team has just captured the Sunday Lightweight Mid Ten Premier Division Championship with an 8-1 regular season record. Since then, the Vikings have defeated Prairie Ridge and with a win against Buffalo Grove last Sunday, the road to the Super Bowl is now complete.

Coach Dan Cappello and his team will be battling Oak Park for the Super Bowl title. The Tri-County Youth Football League championship game will take place at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 17.

Starved Rock offers memorable experience

Do you remember back a few years ago when the State of Illinois' Department of Tourism ran an ad campaign featuring a catchy jingle that said, "Just outside your own front door is a place called Illinois?"

It's a shame the state has to pony up our hard-earned tax money to try to preach the beauty and wonderful recreational opportunities that Illinois has to offer.

I am embarrassed to admit here that I had a very minimal amount of experience at Starved Rock until recently. I have fished the Illinois River, but never had taken the time to visit the state park until a couple of years ago.

It was going to be a crisp late October weekend and I asked my wife and a couple of our children whether they wanted to go to Starved Rock and take a hike and enjoy the beautiful display of fall colors.

It was a magnificent experience. The park's trails were in superior condition. The colors were better than their reputation. The visitor's center, with its humongous fish tank featuring great examples of the Illinois River's denizens was amazing. It was a memorable day.

The writers' conference exposed me to much more. Did you know that Starved Rock State Park recently was voted one of the "Seven Wonders of Illinois?" It deserves the title.

I was astonished at the amount of people in the park when I pulled up to the lodge.

Steve Sarley

We checked into the massive Starved Rock Lodge. I never had seen the facility before and was impressed. The lodge, nestled on the banks of the Illinois River, rivals any facility like it in the Midwest as far as cleanliness, comfort and beauty.

The restaurants were very good. You can get a quick muffin or breakfast sandwich with a cup of coffee at the snack shop or sit down for a belt-busting spread.

We got to tour the park and I was floored to see its incredible 125-foot waterfall. Thrill-seekers even venture to the frozen falls in February to try their hand at unauthorized ice climbing. The mere thought of this makes me weak in the knees. Forty-eight hours after check-in, I was back in the Jeep and headed home. I could not have picked a better place to spend two early November days, believe me.

Quarterback debate in full swing

Come on, admit that you missed it.

The arguments with friends.

The debates with neighbors.

The comparisons with co-workers.

You missed all of it, didn't you?

Me too.

When all is said and done, the truth is that Chicago enjoys a good quarterback controversy about as much as it savors Vienna beef and warm days by the lake.

That thirst for a good disagreement is why we're seeing the resurrection of a choice we've been arguing for over a year now: Presuming that his left, non-throwing shoulder is healthy, should the Bears continue to start Brian Griese?

Or should they revisit the play of Rex Grossman, who played 31 minutes of turnover-free football and threw the winning touchdown pass to Bernard Berrian in a 17-6 win in Oakland Nov. 11?

Because everyone needs to have a stance (there can be no middle ground), I think Grossman should be the guy when the Bears hit Seattle Nov. 18.

Yes, you read that right.

It's time for the embattled one to get another chance after two months of watching from the sidelines.

Of course, neither signal caller seems to have the instant prescription to completely cure the 4-5 Bears and spark them on a romp to a playoff berth.

Both have sizable holes in their games and both still have to deal with an ailing offensive line and a running back who managed only 76 yards against a Raiders' run defense that was giving up an average of twice that.

But if you think the Patriots are going to win the Super Bowl anyway, and that a Bears' playoff appearance would be short-lived, why wouldn't you support seeing Grossman for the season's final seven games?

Wouldn't you rather have a more complete body of evidence to weigh once Grossman's need for a new contract at the end of the season?

Considering the Bears have no other long-term solutions at quarterback, there's no harm in allowing Grossman a few more starts.

If he bombs, he bombs — at least general manager Jerry Angelo could be comfortable in allowing Grossman to walk in the off-season.

If the failures come in the next few games, then Kyle Orton could get a few looks under center.

Really, what's the downside here? Griese performed admirably in road games against Green Bay and Philadelphia, but he's not the future.

If Grossman (or Orton) shows that he's a changed man, then the Bears could use next spring's first round draft pick on another big position of need, like safety or offensive line.

Because he is a true master at being vague, it came as no surprise that Lovie Smith elected not to shed any definitive light on which quarterback he might start against Seattle.

"It's unclear who's going to start," Smith said Nov. 12 at Halas Hall. "Once you get two healthy guys, then you start [evaluating]. ... Right now, we finished with two guys that could play, Rex Grossman and Kyle Orton, so that's really what we're dealing with here."

Smith went on to say that Griese's shoulder had been classified as a "sprain" and that the veteran had yet to receive approval from the team's doctors.

The situation gets a little touchy because of the unspoken NFL rule that a starter should never lose a job to injury.

Still, if you read between the lines Monday, it seemed like Smith was preparing us for Rex's return, just like he prepped us for Griese's takeover after Week 3. Who knows? Maybe Lovie secretly likes a good quarterback controversy, too.

"I like what Rex did in the game," Smith said.

"Whenever you come in like that in a hostile environment and lead your team to a win, you have to take notice and I definitely took notice."

Smith was right in taking notice.

He'll be even more right in taking a risk by bringing back Grossman. Argue if you like, but it's time for Rex's Round Two.

New Lakes coach debuts in tourney

By DANIEL J. PATRICK
dpatrick@nwnews-group.com

MUNDELEIN — Perhaps there's light at the end of the tunnel after all. Even after a crushing 58-36 defeat courtesy of the Grayslake North Knights, things are looking up for the Lakes Eagles.

After two full seasons without a win, Lakes seems to be on the right track. Scoring is up with back-to-back 30-plus point nights, but an impressive outing from the Grayslake North Knights will force the Eagles to wait even longer for that elusive first win.

Three years ago, neither Lakes or Grayslake North had a varsity team. Three years ago, there wasn't even a Grayslake North High School. But new kids on the block Grayslake North and Lakes met up in the Mundelein Turkey Shootout and put on quite a show. But while Lakes showed real signs of improvement in the first half, Grayslake North squashed any hope of snapping the streak.

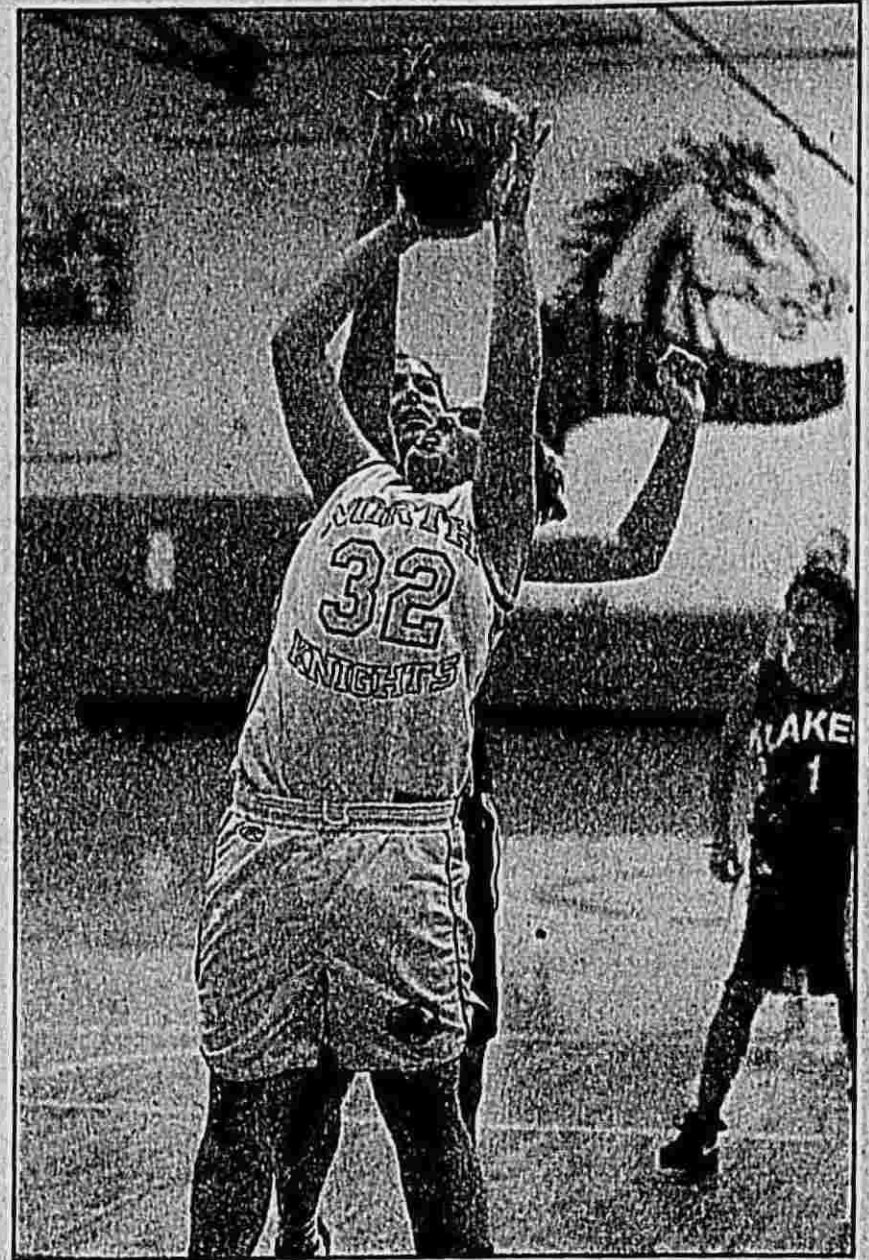

In the first half, North was unable to gain a double-digit lead as the Eagles hung around. But in the second half, the Knights opened up the third quarter with a 13-2 barrage.

Grayslake kept up the pressure in the fourth quarter and coasted to the easy 58-36 victory. Leading the way was Grayslake senior guard Elizabeth Phillips. Phillips had a career-best 24-point performance to lead the Knights.

"She really had a breakout game," North coach Jim Sarver said. "Anytime you get that kind of scoring from a five-foot-nine point guard, you're going to see some major points on the scoreboard."

Eagles have Hart

But beyond the singular matchup between the Eagles

Annie Christie - achristie@nwnews-group.com

and Knights was a story of change for Lakes Community High School.

This year, new head coach Elizabeth Hart-Hinkle swooped in like a breath of fresh air. Hart-Hinkle, coupled with battle-tested seniors like Keshia Cunningham, Mandy Schellinger and Nora Kenney could finally have the Eagles rising from their well-documented problems.

Hart-Hinkle might know what she is talking about as she is a well-known name for the University of Toronto Blues due to a prolific mid-'90s playing career. As a Blue, Hart-Hinkle was a two-time member of the Canadian Interuniversity Sport All-Canadian team, and played for the Canadian All-Star team.

Even with all of her personal success, Hart-Hinkle is not looking at her own past and she's especially not looking at the Eagles' past.

"When I took this job, I didn't look a whole lot at what happened previously," Hart-Hinkle said. "I just looked at the fundamentals of basketball and how I want to teach these girls ... I'm not going to ask these girls to do something they can't do, but they had better do what I ask."

Hart-Hinkle said she bases her coaching philosophy on her own experience as a player.

Air Flow Industries offers quality service

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

With so many air duct cleaning companies out there, we at Air Flow Industries feel it is very important for us to explain to you what it is that we do, why we are qualified and most importantly why you should choose our company.

Air Flow Industries is a family owned and operated company. We would like to assure you that we are not a "fly by night company" nor are we a "blow and go" company. We have over eight years experience in the air duct cleaning industry. Our experience includes residential as well as commercial ventilation cleaning. Our number one priority is and always will be customer satisfaction.

The first question we will answer is what does your service entail? Our service includes a 12 step cleaning process. Our technicians will first set up a high-powered vacuum system and attach it to your ventilation system. When that vacuum is started it will create a negative state through out the ductwork, which in turn will assist in removing all dirt and debris from the ductwork. We then insert an agitation tool into each vent opening (both return and supply vents). This device will come in contact with the walls of the ductwork loosening the dust and debris; the negative state will draw it backward to the filtration device. After the ductwork has been cleaned we will also clean the large portions of the furnace. Once we have your homes ventilation system cleaned we will apply a disinfectant to the system. For the average single furnace home, this process will take approx. 3-4 hours.

the process we will tell you why we do it this way. Air Flow Industries is certified through the National Air Duct Cleaners Association (NADCA). NADCA provides standards as well as indispensable education for the air duct cleaning process. In order to become certified by NADCA the individual must attend classes and pass testing. In order to remain certified it is required to continually update education. Air Flow Industries takes the certification and NADCA's standards very seriously; this is why our air duct cleaning process is so thorough. Please feel free to go to the NADCA website for more information on duct cleaning. www.NADCA.com or call 847-863-7660.

The last and possibly the most important question to answer is Why choose Air Flow Industries above any other air duct cleaning company? Well the answer is simply that we know our profession; we are certified as well as factory trained on our equipment.

Because this is a family owned company our employees are honest, reliable and hard working. Not to mention we truly believe The Customer is No. 1! Your satisfaction is our goal.

Environmental club picks up trash

MUNDELEIN - A newly formed environmental club at Fremont Middle School has set its first task to cleaning up trash outside of its campus walls along Fremont Center Road.

While landscapers add the finishing touches to the multi-million dollar building projects at the three schools in Fremont District 79, students will remove paper, cans and other debris along the two-mile stretch of road in an attempt to beautify the campus entrance.

The middle school's Green Club: Outdoor Recreation & Environmental Studies, is charged with providing environmental education activities to students. The club seeks to teach students about environmental issues that affect their community, region, and planet. It is the hope of sponsor Austin Schwartz to incorporate outdoor reaction activities into the club to strengthen students' connections to their natural surroundings and act as a vehicle for personal growth.

"Through club discussions, stewardship, and activities, it is my hope that students will develop a deeper sense of personal responsibility and global citizenship," Mr. Schwartz said.

Other activities students are interested in are improving the school's recycling program, gardening, raising money for environmental projects, and enjoying the outdoors through hiking, bicycling and kayaking.

Fremont Middle School is a sixth through eighth grade school serving 679 students living in the communities of Mundelein, Wauconda, Hawthorn Woods, Grayslake, Ivanhoe, Round Lake, Round Lake Park, Long Grove and Libertyville.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. These checks are FAKE and YOU will be held liable for re-paying the funds to the bank.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.
For information on how to report a scam, go to: <http://www.ic3.gov/>
